

FOOD PROCESSING AND PACKAGING

IN THE CENTER OF EVERYTHING

The seven-state TVA region has all the elements needed for success in food processing and packaging, including a central location and prime transportation network.

The states within the Valley region, which includes Tennessee and parts of Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina and Virginia, are leading national producers of many raw food products.

The area's transportation assets include 10 interstate highways, eight major railways, two international and 12 commercial/international airports, and multiple options for air freight. Most of the major population centers in the Midwest and Northeast are within a one-day drive. Year-round barge transport can be readily accessed.

Electricity is generated by TVA, one of the nation's largest and most reliable power companies, with 99.999 percent transmission reliability since 2000.

The Valley region has a strong existing base of food processing and packaging companies, supported by access to a large number of excellent technology training centers.

TVA offers a complete array of services for companies planning to relocate or expand, including site selection, technical support, economic research, financial incentives, and expertise in energy use and industrial process improvement.
